Handwritten notes in Chinese characters, possibly describing the river's course or local features. The text is written in a cursive style and is somewhat difficult to read due to its orientation and fading.

Handwritten characters, possibly '北' (North) or similar, located near the top left of the map.

Handwritten characters within a blue-shaded area, possibly identifying a specific location or feature on the riverbank.

A series of handwritten labels along the main river channel, including characters like '上' (top), '中' (middle), and '下' (bottom), which may indicate different sections or stations along the river.

Handwritten labels on the right side of the map, possibly identifying specific locations or landmarks.
