不... (The text in this block continues the cursive script from the top section. It is organized into several vertical columns, with a prominent signature '月夜' (Tsukiya) appearing in the lower right quadrant. The script is consistent with the top section, showing a high level of technical skill and artistic expression. The text concludes with a final flourish on the far left.
