

Handwritten Japanese text on a yellowish slip of paper. The characters are written in a cursive style (sōsho). The text is arranged in two columns, reading from right to left. The right column contains the characters 木 (ki) and 和 (wa). The left column contains the characters 子 (ko) and 和 (wa). The characters are connected by wavy lines, suggesting they are part of a continuous sequence or a specific dialectal form.

