

Handwritten Japanese text in cursive (sōsho) style, consisting of approximately 15 vertical columns of characters. The text is densely packed and flows from right to left across the page. The characters are dark ink on aged, slightly yellowed paper. The style is highly fluid and characteristic of Edo-period calligraphy.

