Handwritten Japanese text in cursive style (sōsho), likely a letter or document. The text is written vertically on a strip of paper, starting from the right side and moving left. The characters are fluid and connected, characteristic of the cursive style. The text appears to be a personal communication or a formal document, possibly related to a family or a specific event, given the use of characters like '母' (mother) and '父' (father). The paper shows signs of age and wear, with some discoloration and a slightly uneven texture.

Handwritten text in a cursive script, likely a historical document or manuscript. The text is written on aged, yellowed paper and is arranged in approximately 15 lines. The script is dense and characteristic of 17th or 18th-century handwriting. The text is mostly illegible due to the cursive style and fading, but some words like "Herrn" and "Herrn" are visible. There are some corrections or deletions in the text, such as a crossed-out word in the fourth line.
